Student aid increase approved by Senate

By Traci Meister
Daily Campus Staff

HARTFORD—The state Senate Friday approved a 15 percent increase in student aid and a $110 million UConn budget for 1987.

UConn was the only group lobbbying for the 15 percent increase in student aid, said Geoff Johnson, a spokesman for the Bigger Better Deal.

"We have spent a lot of time articulating the needs of students to legislators," Johnson said, "and now the work is beginning to pay off."

Last year the same request was included in the proposed budget but was cut to 7 percent by the legislature.

According to Johnson last year's proposal was cut because nobody followed up on it. "The Bigger Better Deal campaign changed that, " Johnson said.

Senate approval was the Bigger Better Deal's most difficult hurdle, Johnson said.

The success of the UConn aid and budget can be attributed to the "organized lobby effort made by the UConn students," Johnson said. "It was the thousands who signed petitions, the hundreds who wrote letters along with the group that lobbied at the capitol throughout the session that enabled the students to make a difference and bring back real benefits for everyone."

This shows that students are actually a part of the legislative process now and are receiving results because of their participation, Johnson said.

The UConn aid and budget was part of a $4.3 billion general fund budget approved by the Senate.

The state budget as approved by the Senate now goes to the House. If approved there, it goes to Governor O'Neill for final approval.

Johnson sees the UConn budget and the aid increase fairing well in the House. "All along, House members from both parties have been very supportive of our drive."

The House is expected to take up the budget issue this week. It will meet every day to get its business done because the General Assembly adjourns May 7.

The Senate will be looking at other related revenue matters, including tax cut proposals that would reduce the tax on residential utility bills, inheritances, real estate and income from dividends and interest.

The General Assembly may also consider the Appropriations Committee's $87 million education trust fund and $465 million transportation fund before it concludes this session.

Marcos wants power again

HONOLULU (AP)—Deposed President Ferdinand Marcos indicated in a telephone conversation with President Reagan that he would like to return to power in the Philippines, but Reagan "said nothing to encourage him," a senior U.S. official said Sunday.

The official, speaking on condition he not be identified, described what he called an emotional conversation between the two on Saturday after Reagan arrived in Hawaii, where Marcos has been in exile since he was ousted by Corazon Aquino in February.

Marcos, the source said, got "a lot off his chest" in the 10-minute talk initiated by Reagan. The former Philippine president knew Reagan would be calling and prepared what he wanted to say, the official said.

The source said Reagan was sympathetic and listened quietly as Marcos spoke. But the president told the 20-year ruler of the Philippines, whom he regards as an old friend and ally, that "the Philippine people have made their decision and ultimately it is their decision" to make, the official recounted.

A source in Manila, who called Marcos on Saturday, quoted Marcos as saying the talk with Reagan was "friendly, congenial, productive and fruitful." The two men discussed Marcos' situation "realistically," but Marcos did not elaborate, according to the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

On Sunday, Marcos spoke by telephone to a cheering crowd of about 12,000 followers in Manila, telling them he was the legitimate president of the Philippines. He urged them to demonstrate peacefully against the Aquino government, and said "I am healthy....I am ready to fight."

Concerts get mixed reaction

By Derek Gray
Daily Campus Staff

Some came for the music, packing close to the tent-covered stage in the northeast corner of Memorial Stadium and climbing upon shoulders.

Some played hackey-sack and sent frisbees and footballs darting across the field.

Some stood outside chugging their beer before going through the security check.

This year's Spring Weekend concerts, the first not to allow alcohol, got a mixed reaction from UConn students. Both shows, John Cafferty & The Beaver Brown Band on Saturday and Sunday's concert featuring The Alarm, each attracted about 5,000 people.

There were no major problems, however, and things ran relatively smoothly.

"All the planned events went well," Sgt. Fred Silliman of the UConn police said. Police would not comment further, saying their information was incomplete.

"We were concerned that people would get really rowdy because of the new policy on alcohol," said Mitch Marcinauskis, former president of SUBOG, which sponsored Sunday's concert.

SUBOG and USG, which sponsored Saturday's concert, organized searches of all concert-goers outside the stadium to ensure that no alcohol was brought in.

Police were also stationed on Freedom Hill and near the main gates.

"The majority of the people were incredibly cooperative," Marcinauskis said. However, some people were able to smuggle liquor into the stadium. "We didn't catch them all," he said.

Local school board debates sex education

MILFORD (AP)—A plan to teach sex education in the public schools has been shot down twice in the past 10 years, but the fight is heating up for a third time and supporters and opponents are drawing their battle lines.

Opponents of sex education are staunchly against the idea. Some cite religious and moral concerns, others say it won't help alleviate the problem of pregnant teen-agers.

At a recent Board of Education meeting, one person argued that such a course would be "a moral disservice," and said the topic can't be taught as a subject. Another parent said sex education "would give children the message that pre-marital sex is acceptable." Another person contended that "all the sex education in the world is not going to decrease the number of teen-age pregnancies."

One woman maintained that "there is no serious problem in Milford with out-of-wedlock pregnancies." Another called sex education "a waste of taxpayers' money."

During that meeting there was only one point the 10 opponents and eight supporters of sex education in the school came close to agreeing on: the subject is best taught in the home.

But, several parents were concerned about the teen-agers that don't learn what they need to know at home.

"There are a lot of parents who can't speak to their children" one supporter told the board. "If every parent were a great educator, we'd be in great shape. But that's not the case."

The plan under consideration by the board calls for instituting courses in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades that would deal partly with sex. Superintendent of Schools George T. Vitelli said the program would include such topics, as family relations, drugs, alcohol and nutrition.

Spy to take the stand

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—John A. Walker takes the witness stand in federal court Monday to publicly describe for the first time his 17 years as a Soviet spymaster, and to accuse ex-Navy buddy Jerry Whitworth of espionage.

The government, admitting Walker is a traitor, will ask jurors to believe his testimony and convict Whitworth as a spy. The defense will argue that Walker's accusations are self-serving lies.

For Whitworth, a retired Navy radioman who faces the prospect of life in prison if convicted, this is the first confrontation with Walker since both men were arrested nearly a year ago.

Whitworth, 46, who had a spotless service record, is accused of being the chief supplier of classified codes and communications data that Walker sold to the Soviets. The government alleges that he received $332,000 and has charged him with 13 counts of espionage and tax evasion, seven of which carry potential life sentences.

Whitworth says he is innocent and his lawyers say he is being offered as a sacrificial lamb by Walker, who won leniency for himself and his 23-year-old son, Michael, by agreeing to be the star witness against Whitworth.

The prosecution, while conceding Walker has a credibility problem, is relying on him to provide key evidence against Whitworth in the trial that began March 24.

"In this case, you're going to have to decide whether you're going to believe the testimony of John Walker...or whether you're going to reject it out of hand because he is a traitor," Assistant U.S. Attorney William Farmer told jurors in his opening statement.

Defense attorney Tony Tamburello said Walker's testimony would be so self-serving as to be unbelievable: "The government made a deal with a shark to go after a minnow."

Tourist fatally shot by possible terrorist

JERUSALEM (AP)—A 28-year-old British tourist was shot dead Sunday outside a Christian holy site in Jerusalem's Arab sector, and police said the attack may have been the act of terrorists.

Jerusalem police spokesman Rafi Levy told reporters the man was host once in the back of the head with a small caliber pistol.

It was the third shooting of a tourist in six weeks in east Jerusalem and raised concern that attackers could be aiming their guns at travelers to frighten off visitors to Israel. The two earlier victims survived.

Police sources, who insisted on anonymity, said they were investigating whether the attack was meant as retaliation for Britain's allowing U.S. planes to take off from British soil two weeks ago to bomb Libya.

The victim carried papers indicating he was a British citizen, police said, declining to give his identity immediately. Israel radio identified him as Paul Appleby of Bristol, England.

He was shot in an isolated alleyway just outside the gate of the Garden Tomb shrine, which is administered by a British-based foundation.

Protestants believe the hilltop is where Jesus was crucified and buried. Catholics, Greek Orthodox and most other Christian groups believe the Church of the Holy Sepulchre inside the Old City is the site of the crucifixion and burial.

The Garden Tomb shrine borders on the Old City, which was crowded Sunday with those observing the eight-day Jewish Passover commemorating the biblical Israelites' escape from Egyptian bondage.

The Rev. William White of Dorset, England, a chaplain at the site, said a woman heard a shot ring out around 12:50 p.m. and he ran to call the police.

Military sources said last week they were trying to uncover four terror gangs operating out of Jerusalem's Old City and the occupied West Bank.

...Spring Weekend concerts get mixed reactions

"People weren't getting incredibly drunk," Marcinauskis said. "It was not like Spring Weekends in the past, but it was nice."

Some people were not pleased with the restrictions on alcohol.

"I had a good time [this weekend]," Caola Schonberg, a senior marketing major, said, "but I had a good time off-campus. The people I hang around with don't like to be told how to act. We're adults here. I was totally unhappy with the situation. I'm graduating, and I'm glad."

A graduate who came back for Sunday's show agreed. "It's changed a lot since my day."

George Marco, a Storrs resident who has come to the past four Spring Weekend concerts, said he "still had a good time, but a couple of beers loosens the crowd up. It's a little more fun. Everybody was kind of dead."

Aside from a banner reading "UConn cops get a real job-please," there were no visible demonstrations against the new policy.

Others didn't mind the restrictions.

"I think it's just as good as last Spring Weekend," a junior psychology major said.

Len Modeen, a graduate from last year, said the concerts were "a little more restricted," but were still "a good time."

Some people were upset with Saturday's concert.

"I was here an hour and a half before the band went on," one woman said.

Jeff Taylor, chairman of Student Affairs for USG, said a Blue-White football scrimmage delayed the concert which was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. Cool Runnings, a Hartford reggae band, had to be canceled, and Cafferty did not begin playing until 5:20 p.m.

Cafferty & The Beaver Brown Band played their own hits, such as "Dark Side" and "Tender Years," along with many classics like "Come and Go With Me," "Under the Boardwalk" and "Runaround Sue."

Denny Dent, the rock and roll artist, The Long Ryders and Modern English performed before The Alarm on Sunday.

Former CIA employee to speak

Former CIA employee David Macmichael will speak on Central American arms traffic and Contra forces Thursday May 1. The lecture, sponsored by a coalition of student clubs, will be at 8 p.m. in room 378 Student Union South. A question-and-answer session will follow the one-hour lecture. The public is welcome.

Currently employed by the Council on Hemispheric Affairs (COHA) in Washington, D.C., Macmichael served the CIA from 1981 to 1983 analyzing arms traffic in Central America. Upon expiration of his CIA contract he made two investigative trips into Nicaragua before going public with charges that the Reagan Administration lacked proof of Nicaraguan gun-running to El Salvador. He testified at the World Court in September, 1985. A former career officer in the U.S. Marine Corps, Macmichael served in the Korean War and as a counter-insurgency specialist with the Department of Defense in Southeast Asia as well as Central America.

Mrs. Marcos blows $3.5 million on art

NEW YORK (AP)— Imelda Marcos paid $3.5 million to an Italian art dealer for a painting she believed was by Michaelangelo but was actually the work of a lesser artist, worth at most "several hundred thousand dollars," art experts said in a report published Sunday.

Most of the works in a collection of the wife of the ousted president of the Philipines, including the purported Michelangelo, are inconsequential paintings of unimportant artists, the experts told The New York Times.

Mrs. Marcos paid $3.5 million for the purported Michelangelo in 1983, according to records cited by the new Philippine government of Corazon Aquino.

Everett Fahy, director of the Frick Collection, said only one Michelangelo painting is known to exist—the "Tondo Doni" that hangs in the Uffizi Gallery in Florence, Italy.

Fahy said 75 paintings acquired by Mrs. Marcos reportedly from the same dealer, Mario Bellini, and hanging in a Manila museum were not the works of Tintoretto, Canaletto and others of that rank, as many are purported to be.

Interviewed by telephone from his home in Monte Carlo, Bellini told The Times that he had sold some paintings to Mrs. Marcos but he refused to be specific. He denied selling her a Michelangelo.

Magistrates in Florence, where Bellini's business is based, announced two weeks ago that they were investigating him for the reported sale.

It is not known how much Mrs. Marcos paid for the other 75 paintings or whether she knew any were inauthentic when purchased or later.

Mrs. Marcos is said to have remarked to Jack Tanzer, of the Knoedler Gallery, in 1983 that the painting was a Michelangelo, the newspaper said. Tanzer said he knew it was not what she claimed and at best was worth only "several hundred thousand dollars."

Two Manhattan art dealers, however, said Mrs. Marcos later approached a law firm here through an intermediary, saying he wanted her money back, the Times reported.

Shriver, Schwarzeneggar tie knot

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Workers packed up white tents and tourists drove about in search of celebrities as tranquility returned Sunday to this Cape Cod village following the star-studded wedding of Maria Shriver and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

The 30-year-old bride, a co-anchor of "CBS Morning News," is the daughter of Eunice Kennedy Shriver and former ambassador and 1972 vice presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver.

The bride, niece of slain President John F. Kennedy, will go by the unhyphenated name of Shriver Schwarzenegger but will still call herself Maria Shriver on the air.

Schwarzenegger, 38, is a former world champion body-builder who became an actor at age 29. He has starred in "Pumping Iron," "The Terminator" and "Conan, the Barbarian."

"It was like a summer weekend here last night," said Sgt. Martin Hoxie of the Barnstable police department, which covers the villages of Hyannis and Hyannis Port, where the Kennedy family compound is located.

"It's quiet out there, but all I know is I've got a full house here full of prisoners," said Hoxie. "It could have had something to do with the wedding, but I think it's more an indication of the summer to come."

The night before, about 450 wedding guests dined on chicken breats and champagne sauce under tents after the late-morning wedding in nearby Hyannis.

They were served slices from the 7-foot-high, 425-pound carrot-and-pound wedding cake, and danced to the music of the Peter Duchin Orchestra. Most of the

'Captain Midnight' protests on HBO

NEW YORK (AP)—A video hacker calling himself "Captain Midnight" startled cable television viewers from Maine to the Plains early Sunday when he interrupted a movie on Home Box Office with a printed message protesting HBO's scrambling of its satellite-to-earth TV signals.

"It's a criminal, willful interference of a government-licensed satellite broadcast," fumed David Pritchard, an HBO vice president, who said the cable system had received sabotage threats in recent months.

Pritchard said HBO planned to report the incident to the Federal Communications Commission.

"It's kind of like terrorism of the airwaves," said Greg Mahany, who was watching in Middletown, Ohio, when the message interrupted "The Falcon and The Snowman."

The message, printed in white letters on a color-bar test pattern background, read: "Goodevening HBO from Captain Midnight. $12.95 a month? No way! (Showtime-Movie Channel Beware.)"

Mahany said that at first the picture flipped back and forth between the message and the movie, making it seem like "HBO was trying to get its signal back.....It looked like a fight for control of the microwave beam."

The message appeared at 12:30 a.m. EST and remained on the air about five minutes. It was seen in the eastern two-thirds of the nation, which accounts for more than half of HBO's 14.6 million subscribing households.

Pritchard said the hacker, apparently with the use of a satellite dish and a powerful transmitter, effectively replaced HBO's signal with his own.

For some reason—possibly because Captain Midnight's signal was better-timed or more powerful—HBO's satellite received the hacker's signal instead of HBO's and beamed it down to HBO's earth relay stations.

Sunday's intrusion was immediately noticed at HBO's communications center in Hauppauge, N.Y., but it was not clear whether the hacker ended his own message or was forced off by HBO.

Pritchard said HBO would have no comment on that. "We have implemented some technical remedies, and we're pursuing others," he said. "This represents a clear danger to every satellite user."

Pritchard said action like Sunday morning's had been threatened in letters to HBO and in magazines read by dish owners.

"We'd been threatened for the last four or five months with something like this if we didn't reconsider our plan to scramble," he said. "They said they'd do something. They didn't say what."

The HBO cable signal is scrambled to prevent reception in homes wired for cable television but not equipped with an HBO converter. Until earlier this year, satellite dish owners were able to intercept the unscrambled signal HBO bounces off satellites to the earth stations that relay the signal via cable.

In January, however, HBO began scrambling all its satellite-to-earth signals. HBO told dish owners who had been watching for free they would have to buy a descrambler for $395 and pay $12.95 a month.

Another leading pay cable service, Showtime announced plans for a similar system.

Pritchard said about 6,000 dish owners put down the cash for the decoder and signed up for HBO or its sister service, Cinemax. But the proposal has been unpopular with others.

"They say things like, 'The airwaves are free,' and 'They (HBO) are using government satellites that our taxes pay for,'" Pritchard said.

Pritchard said HBO's programs are its property, and it leases space from privately owned satellites.

...couple united

celebrities left just after the reception, police said.

The only outsiders left in the village were the few tourists who drove around hoping for a last glimpse of the guests and the workers packing up the tents, police said.

Among the notables at the wedding and afternoon reception were actresses Grace Jones, Susan Saint James Ebersol and Cathy Lee Crosby, pop singer Andy Williams, tennis star Arthur Ashe, artists Jamie Wyeth and Andy Warhol, columnists Art Buchwald and Abigail Van Buren, television personalities Barbara Walters, Diane Sawyer and Tom Brokaw, and Austrian Ambassador Thomas Klestil.

They were joined by a host of Kennedy family members, including Jacqueline Onassis, wife of the late President Kennedy; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., his former wife, Joan, and their children, Ted Jr. and Kara; Ethel Kennedy, the wife of slain Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., and her son, Joseph P. Kennedy II, a candidate for the 8th Congressional District.

Family matriarch Rose Kennedy, who suffered a stroke two years ago, did not attend the 75-minute service at St. Francis Xavier Church.

The couple's honeymoon destination was kept a secret, though it has been reported they might fly to the nearby island of Martha's Vineyard.

Rexroth recalls classics

Kenneth Rexroth, the late poet, translator, and essayist, was an omnivore in the fields of literature. Classics Revisited, first published in 1969, is a collection of brilliant, brief essays from a series in the Saturday Review in which Rexroth discusses sixty key books of world literature that are, for him, "basic documents in the history of the imagination." About five pages long, each essay, ranging from the Epic of Gilgamesh to Huckleberry Finn, presents complex ideas in a plain, wide-awake style. Bradford Morrow says in his afterword: "Perceptive lucidity, goodness of soul, integrity, mastery of literary expression, abiding witness to both the nobility and sheer ordinariness of the human heart, its tragedy, its comedy—these are present in degrees in all of Rexroth's classics."

Symphony Pops set Whalers to music

Richard Hayman returns to the Hatrford Symphony Pops on Friday and Saturday, May 9 and 10 to lead the Symphony's first-ever "Wide World of Sports" concert-saluting athletics of all sorts. The concerts begin at 8:00 p.m. at Bushnell Memorial Hall.

A tribute to the Hartford Whalers highlights the program. Whalers president and general manager Emile Francis, accompanied by the "Voice of the Whalers," Chuck Kaiton, are scheduled to join the Hartford Symphony along with some special surprise guests. Francis will narrate "America the Beautiful," and Kaiton will read the text of Freddie the Football, an original Richard Hayman composition. The Whalers' fight song will be performed for the first time by symphony orchestra in an arrangement by Hayman.

Beside hockey, the Symphony Pops will salute running ("Chariots of Fire"), boxing ("Theme from Rocky"), bicycling (Meldelssohn's Italian Symphony, used in the film Breaking Away), and car racing (March song from the film Grand Prix) among others. To represent swimming, Hayman has humorously chosen the theme from Jaws.

Conductor Richard Hayman has been chief arranger of the Boston Pops for over three decades. Currently Principle Pops Conductor of the St. Louis, Alabama and Calgary Orchestras, he has also been a long-time favorite of Hartford audiences. The Hartford Courant has noted: "Hayman is now the hottest Pops attraction in the country...(and) Hartford audiences have done their part during the past few seasons to vault Hayman to this pinnacle."

These concerts mark the season finale of the Hartford Symphony Pops' 1985-86 season, a year which saw several sell-out performances. Subscription tickets are now on sale for the Pops' 1986-87 series, called "A Champagne Season." A brochure describing next year's concerts is available by calling the Hartford Symphony at 236-6101.

Tickets for the "Wide World of Sports" Pops concerts are on sale at the Bushnell Box Office, 246-6807. They range in price from $9-$25.

Weekend wrap-up

So, how was your Spring Weekend?

This will probably be the most asked question today as people try to assess the success of their past weekend as compared to the good times of others. It's always hoped that you had a better time than everyone else.

The interesting thing will be to match the answers to the question to the year that the reponder is in at UConn. Chances are you will get a different response from freshman than you will from seniors.

This is not to take anything away from underclassmen who thoroughly enjoyed the weekend. But as any upperclassmen will tell you, things sure have changed at good, old UConn.

It was just not the same feeling of excitement and sense of community that one got from past Spring Weekends. The concerts were interesting, but the crowds were noticeably smaller and less enthusiastic than in past years. The party atmoshpere was just not there.

But the university administration did accomplish one thing—it kept the alcohol out of Memorial Stadium (at least most of it). Unfortunately (at least from the school's view), they couldn't stop the drinking at just about every other location around the campus.

And we suppose the sweet smell that permeated the air during the concerts was simply people buring incense?

Also, the vandalism which the de-emphasis on alcohol was supposed to prevent still occurred. Dorms were trashed, outdoor signs were destroyed and beer bottles were broken on streets and sidewalks.

So what was accomplished by banning alcohol and keeping people penned into Memorial Stadium? Well, believe it or not, the library was packed with students both days.

That must have made the administration very happy.

Into home stretch

Just a reminder to all those who are still recovering from a weekend of revelry that we are now entering our final week of classes. Now before you spit up your scrambled eggs in the realization of just how close exams are, remember— there are still five days left in which to meet your teachers, get a course syllabus and buy some books.

These final two weeks at UConn (give or take a few days for some of us) should prove to be extremely hectic for many students. Late nights, long hours of studying and frustrating searches for missing notes will punctuate these remaining days.

Unfortunately, it seems as though the weatherman will not cooperate with our study needs. The forecast for the next couple of days calls for warm, sunny weather will little chance of rain.

It figures—horrible Spring Weekend weather, great final exam weather.

But at least we can take comfort in one pleasing thought. Summer is just around the corner and all this misery will soon be just a memory.

How gorgeous is gorgeous?

We had agreed to meet for dinner. I was a few minutes early, so I waited at the bar of the restaurant. There was another person at the bar. She was a very attractive blond woman who gave off an aura of cool distance. Every indication was that she was there to be by herself, and did not wish to be bothered.

My companion arrived. He walked over to greet me. The blond woman saw him out of the corner of her eye. She turned around to face him, and she said "You are gorgeous."

My companion did not know exactly what to say. He paused for a second, and then said, "I'm gorgeous? Thank you."

We started to walk toward the hostess' station so that we could go to our table, but the blond woman rose from her seat. "I have to shake your hand," she said to my companion. He shook her hand. "I just wanted to feel your energy," she said.

Here's what was happening: My companion, back in the early '70s, was the star of the most popular show on television. He played a detective. So great was his fame that he was featured on the cover of Time magazine.

He is now in his late 50s. "Gorgeous" is not a word that would objectively be used to describe him; he has a weather-beaten face that shows the marks of a lifetime of experiences. He is pleasing to look at, but if he had walked into the restaurant and been anyone but himself, it is a good bet that the blonde at the bar would not have glanced twice at him.

But such had been the impact of the character he had once played on television that the woman, seemingly involuntarily, was moved to react as she had. What made it more amazing is that when the man walked into the restaurant, he was wearing a jacket with the collar pulled up, and a hat pulled down hard on his forehead. You would have thought it would have been difficult to recognize him.

We went to our table, and when the waiter approached he handed my companion a menu and addressed him by name. You have to remember: It has been a decade or so since my companion's television show was airing in first run. It is still seen in syndication—but it's not as if Americans are still wtching him in prime time.

I asked him about it. What had gone through his mind when the blond woman at the bar had spoken to him?

"I don't know," he said. "What do you say? A woman you have never met calls you gorgeous. It makes me a little uncomfortable. How do you respond to something like that?"

And the waiter, I said; the waiter had addressed him as if they were old friends.

My companion began to nod his head. "I don't think God ever intended for a person to be recognized by 2 billion people," he said. "but that's what happened after that series went on the air. It's still in syndication in every part of the world, and there's no place I can go that this doesn't happen. I was in the movies before the television series happened, but the movies were nothing like this. There's never been anything that has the impact of television."

I asked him if things had been even more intense during the time when the series was in first run.

"I suppose they might have been," he said. "But I wasn't in a position to find out. I was in Hollywood shooting the series 15 hours a day, seven days a week. So I didn't really see anybody. I remember, though, my children didn't like it. I couldn't take them to the park, and they didn't like the whole thing."

I told him that I had recently spent some time on the set of "Miami Vice" with Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas, who star in that series. I had been surprised by something. Johnson and Thomas were constantly talking not about the success of "Miami Vice," but about other projects they wanted to pursue. Both of them, for example, wanted to be recording stars, and have their songs played on the radio. And Johnson said that he wanted to be able to direct television movies. I had wondered: Why did they want anything more?

"Probably because they're afraid that what they have now is going to go away," my companion said. The tone of his voice conveyed his message: Johnson and Thomas were wrong. When you reach a certain level, it never goes away. Even the passing of time doesn't make it go away.

We finished our dinner and took a short walk. We passed by another bar, this one with people sitting inside against big plate glass windows. My companion had his collar pulled up and his hat pulled down again, and we were walking swiftly. But instantaneously the people in the bar were banging their fists against the windows. I could see them mouthing a name; it wasn't my companion's name, but the name of the character he used to play on television.

On the street a couple saw him, and the woman literally screamed out the name of his old television character. This did not seem to affect him one way or the other. He had to go his way, and I had to go mine. We hailed a cab for him. As he climbed into the back seat, I could see that he was ready for what was about to occur. The cab driver was going to turn around and be amazed at who was back there. It must happen every time.

Life is constantly strange, but some lives are so much stranger than others...

Moffett discussed

• Once again Maureen M. Cormack proves in her letter of April 21 that omissions are far worse than lies.

So for the record here is what was omitted:

1)The College Democrats, Republicans and Libertarians were invited to join the Student Network. They chose not to.

2)Unlike Ms. McCormack and Mr. Moffett (he sent his daughter) the student network testified before the State Finance and Budget committee in support of total divestment.

3)To vote in the Mansfield caucus one had to be a registered Democrat. This is quite different from "not voting."

4)Mr. Moffett was asked to speak at the rally and chose not to. This could be because, a)he lost the caucus or b)he was asked not to plug his campaign at the rally. Either way, the issue just wasn't important enough for him.

5)I do not know who "maintains that the political system is so corrupt and inefficient," however many believe that it simply represents capital not people. We have the "choice" of two factions of the "Capitalist Party" which is not a wide variety of thought. To show how "mainstream" political doublespeak has reached new heights the label "conservative" is given for reactionaries and "liberal" is the term used for conservatives.

I understand the concern expressed by Ms. McCormack about general ignorance and apathy, which is nationwide, but claiming Toby Moffett will make a difference does not contribute to either education or energy and involvement. America's largest party votes by abstaining. When 48 percent of the voters do not vote, question your "mainstream politics" and its legitimacy rather than placing the blame on the electorate.

Ms. McCormack as an active Democrat need not push her ideas when they are part of the official propaganda which constantly bombards us; however it is the height of ignorance to presume she knows the ideas of all who are forced to register "Independent." And as long as Capital rules we cannot change or utilize the political system.

So Ms. McCormack go peddle your delusions elsewhere, perhaps to an unemployed politician with tan.

Clarification on letter

•I was extremely disappointed in the way in which my letter (Daily Campus 4/8) was cut and rearranged. Neither myself, nor my friends, nor my professors think I write as poorly as that edited version of my letter indicated. I originally put the statement printed at the end at the beginning because it belongs at the beginning. Secondly, the Campus printed the part of my letter where I proposed to relate a situation and demonstrate "some of the problems people have in their attitudes toward motorcyclists," but only printed half of the events, and none of my point.

I'll try again. I followed the car to where it parked, and, as in my first letter ". . .said to the passenger, 'Why don't you two be more careful next time?' (In all fairness, that may be a word or two off, but I did not swear, I did not yell, and I made no accusations.)" The passenger began yelling at me, and calling me names. Now, certainly I made a fair exchange of these with him, but the point is that the first thought of the person in the law-breaking vehicle was to verbally attack the person who was offended against, with no provocation. He did eventually mention, as I did in my first letter, that she said she was sorry. I didn't hear her through her window, through my helmet, or over my engine, but besides, I want her to be sorry, and not to do it again; it's part of growing up. The sad part is the fact that I really can't get upset about a wrong done to me on my motorcycle, because of sentiment. As I put it in my first letter: "A final note: In terms of my own goals of education and acceptance in this area, I did the wrong thing; now there is one more person out there with a grudge (motorcyclists have been intentionally hit, and run off the road). It's sad, but regardless of my personal feelings about this incident, I must apologize to motorcyclists everywhere."

Contra issue not very simple

• After studying the matter for some time, I have come to the conclusion that clearly, the mainstream media in the U.S. (ie. ABC, CBS, NBC, The Washington Post, The New York Times, Time, Newsweek, etc.) reshape the truth and control thought. The current Contra issue is a case in point.

When the press (from here on in I use the word "press" to mean the mainstream media in the U.S.) reports on the Contra aid issue they focus on Reagan or Tip O'Neill because they are "newsmakers" and not on central American solidarity groups. These groups and others related to them have presented a lot of damaging testimony to Congress that the press rarely reports, so people have only the "newsmakers" word to base their judgement on.

Many people believe what Reagan says because the press will not point out that he could do wrong or that he is lying. For example, Reagan calls the Contras "freedom fighters" and the press rarely disputes this claim. When the press does dispute it, they do so only because they think the Contras are not effective enough or that some Contra leaders are corrupt, but they still believe the basic goals and methods of the Contras are just. This is not so.

Nine out of the ten contra leaders and many of the rank and file are ex-Nicaraguan national guardsmen. Somoza's national guard routinely murdered innocent men, women, and children and the Contras are doing this now. Unfortunately the brutality of the guard was ignored by the press for four decades until a film showing the murder of an ABC cameraman in 1978 by the guard was shown to millions of people and the guard's ruthlessness could no longer be ignored. Now the press is ignoring the brutality of the Contras and it remains to be seen if the recent murder of a Swiss lay worker, Maurice Demierre, and a vanload of women and children will receive more than an eyeblink from the press.

Another fact the press never or rarely mentions is that Robeleo (Mr. Coke as he was known in Nicaragua), a political leader of the Contras, used to own the Nicaraguan soft drink company that was ex-propriated by the Nicaraguan government. Robeleo says he's fighting to return democracy to Nicaragua, but he really wants his corporation back and wants to be able to exploit his workers the way he used to when Somoza was dicktater. Additionally, many of the Contras are forcibly recruited, so the freedom they are fighting for is their own, not the Nicaraguan peoples.

Another point I would like to make is on the way the press covers the Contra aid debate. It gives the impression that the U.S. is governed by a vibrant, representative people's democracy; which is not true but many people believe it is. All the latest polls show that not one demographic group supports aiding the Contras so why is Congress even considering it? The democrats opposing aid to the Contras are no different than Republicans who support the Contras. Both Democrats and Republicans want to remove the Sandinistas from power; the disagreement is on how to do it.

The "liberal" Democrats think: 1. it would look better if the U.S. tried negotiations and diplomatic pressure and, 2. the Contras should be reorganized in order to become a more effective fighting force before the Congress continued to fund them Reagan has had six years to negotiate with Nicaragua, why would he do so now? The Contras will never become an effective fighting force because they are fighting for money or because they are forced to, they are not fighting for justice. The Repubicans want to fund the Contras because if they can't overthrow the Sandinistas then the U.S. government will have to send in "our boys" to do the job.

According to the press, losing the Contra aid vote was a great political loss for Reagan, but the press also says that the Contras will get aid eventually through a congressional compromise, so what has Reagan really lost? The impression given by the press is that a great political battle is unfolding before our eyes, when actually no real battle is going on at all.

The press also exaggerates the Soviet influence in Nicaragua to scare the U.S. public into thinking the Nicaraguans and other "Godless commie hordes" are soon to invade Texas. For example, the April 6th New York Times Sunday Magazine ran an article titled; "The Guerrilla Network" with a subtitle stating; Trained in Cuba, the Soviet Union and other Communist nations, Central America's leftist revolutionaries share arms, money and a common goal. "From this one would think the Soviet Union was training large numbers of soldiers. The article is actually about the "likely training" (it's not proved) of top guerrilla leaders by the Soviets, not troops.

The one example they give of this training by the Soviets is of a Costa Rican named Hernandez. It turns out he wasn't given military training by the Soviets. Instead he was given a typical university education at Moscow's Patrice Lumumba University, a free school of Soviets and third (non-industrial) worlders.

The sub-title of the article also plays up the Soviet influence in Central America. The reality is that the Soviet Union has little influence in Central America because the local Communist Parties are for the status quo and revolutionaries know the Soviet Union is just as imperialistic as the U.S. The only influence the Soviet Union has in Central America is as an arms supplier.

The press wants us to believe Nicaragua has become as dependent on the Soviet Union as Cuba has. The Soviet Union does give Nicaragua some developmental aid but this is mostly a public relations ploy of the Soviet Union. As I said above, most Soviet aid is military aid that Nicaragua needs to fight the U.S. proxies (ie. Contras) attacking them from Costa Rica and Honduras. The press doesn't mention that in addition to the Soviet Union, West Germany, France, Spain and Sweden support and aid Nicaragua.

Nicaragua is a poor country that desperately needs assistance, and they will accept aid from anyone. Nicaraguans realize the Soviet Union is helping them because it is an indirect way to challenge the U. S. while looking good to it's socialist allies. Nicaragua doesn't want to become a Soviet dependency. Why would they want to exchange the hegemony of one super power for that of another?

The desire to be non-aligned is the hope of all third world nations. The success of the Nicaraguan revolution in throwing off U.S. hegemony is an inspiration for other poor countries like El Salvador or Haiti, that someday they won't be controlled by the U.S. and U.S.-based multi-nationals. This is what Washington is really afraid of and what the press is hiding from us, not Soviet Communism, and this is why Nicaraguans are paying so dearly for their independence from the U.S. (10,000 killed by the Contras since 1980).

Nicaragua has become another Vietnam and the press is not alerting people to this reality. In Honduras the U.S. has eight airfields that can accommodate C-130 troop transports, F-16's, short range bombers, a military hospital that can accommodate 6,000 wounded and has permanently stationed 5,000 troops. This buildup is not for occasional war exercises, but is part of the preparation for a protracted war by the U.S. aimed at stemming the tide of inevitable revolution in Central America.

Soon the U.S. military build-up in Central America will continue on it's Vietnam-like course and will include more advisers for the Contras (200 for the military in El Salvador) who will be followed by Special Forces (Green Berets), to be followed by Marines. Again thousands of patriotic but politically ignorant U.S. teenagers (average age of U.S. combat troops in Vietnam was 19) will die killing hundreds of thousands of Central Americans. Unfortunately the majority of the U.S. public will not care about the war in Central America until "our boys" start dying.

I urge people to learn about issues like the U.S. war in Central America before history repeats itself. Alternatives to the mainstream media are available but one has to search for them. Some are: "In These Times," Dollars and Sense, The Monthy Review and books like Noam Chomskys' Turning the Tide. You can find these in the special collection section of the library or in many bookstores in Willimantic.

Education Center jazzes up New Haven

On Saturday and Sunday, May 17 and 18, a program of performances and discussions on jazz and jazz history will be held at the Educational Center for the Arts in New Haven (corner of Audubon and Orange Streets, exit 3, Trumbull Street, of Rt. 91).

The two day program, entitled "Aspects of Jazz HIstory, Critical and Historical, "will feature a number of nationally and internationally known jazz figures. It is sponsored by the Learner's Compass, an adult and community education and information service, and funded by the Humanities Council of Connecticut.

Pianist Barry Harris, who has worked and recorded with Cannonball Adderley, Dexter Gordon, Clark Terry, and others, will perform, as will Bob Neloms, original "house" pianist at Motown Records. Neloms appeared on the first records of Stevie Wonder, the Supremes, the Temptations, the Four Tops, and others, and took part in the first national tour of the Motown Revue, which went through the south at the height of Civil Rights movement tensions ("I remember once they shot at us—they thought we were Freedom Riders," he says.) Neloms went on to work with legendary bassist Charles Mingus' last group.

Martin Williams, former director of the Jazz and American Culture Programs at the Smithsonian, will talk on Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington. Dan Morgenstern, head of the Rutgers Institute of Jazz Studies, will give an introduction to the art of jazz, and lead a discussion on Lester Young and Charlie Parker.

The seminar will be moderated and coordinated by Connecticut saxophonist and writer Allen Lowe. It will be preceded by a series of concerts this week before at the Chapel Square Mall in New Haven, sponsored by the Rouse Corporation.

According to Lowe, "the seminar is significant in that it is the first full scale, serious, and public examination of jazz that has taken place in the New Haven area in some time. The caliber of musicians and critics who will be appearing is exceptionally high.

Connecticut has a rich jazz history, and there is much local interest, but too much of what appears under the title "jazz' in this area is watered down and second rate. This will be the real thing."

For information, call 203-776-1759.

Amnesia is focal point of Fugue

In Lee Thuna's intriguing and intricate new drama, Fugue, the playwright entwines fugue both as theme and style. The play centers around Mary, a woman found wandering the train tracks of Chicago with no memory of the past 10 years, and Dr. Danny Lucchesi, the specialist brought in to find out what caused Mary's memory to be blocked. As Dr. Lucchesi treats Mary, Thuna develops another fugue. Similar to the musical form, she ingeniously develops, chases and fuses Mary's scattered and embattled memories, building them to a climatic and powerful conclusion.

Lee Thuna is the playwright of The Natural Look, the librettist of Show Me Where The Good Times Are, and co-author of Let Me Hear You Smile, all three of which received Broadway productions. She also wrote the original story of "How To Beat The High Cost of Living" and the teleplay of Family Secrets, for which she was nominated for the Writers Guild of American Award for best teleplay. Fugue receives its World Premiere at Long Wharf Theatre under the direction of Ken Frankel, Long Wharf's Associate Artistic Director. Mr. Frankel also directed this season's Pride and Prejudice at Long Wharf, and last year in New York directed the American Premiere of Before The Dawn and a revival of Harold Pinter's Old Times with Anthony Hopkins, Jane Alexander and Marsha Mason. Fugue replaces the American premiere of Progress, which has been rescheduled for next season.

Fugue's Mary is being played by Barbara Barrie, who is perhaps best known as Mrs. Miller opposite Hal Linden in Barney Miller. Ms. Barrie's numerous television credits also include an Emmy Award

Cosby caught spying

"I Spy," the Emmy and Golden Globe winning adventure/comedy series from the mid-1960's, premieres Sunday, May 4 on Nickelodeon's Nick-at-Nite at 6:00p.m. (EST). The 60 minute show, which stars Bill Cosby and Robert Culp, will be telecast each Sunday during the "Nick-at-Nite Preview" programming block as well as Monday through Friday at 9:00p.m. and 2:00a.m. on Nick-at-NIte.

The first action/adventure series to be shot on location, "I Spy" travels to Hong Kong, Mexico, Japan, Italy, Las Vegas, Spain, and Africa to provide exotic settings for top tennis star Kelly Robinson (Culp) and his trainer Alexander Scott (Cosby). The globetrotting tennis lifestyle is an ideal cover for what is actually a team of international espionage agents on dangerous, high level missions. Among the film and television personalities who make guest appearances on the show are Boris Karloff, Leslie Uggams, Ricardo Montalban and Don Rickles.

Bill Cosby won two Emmy awards for his portrayal of Alexander Scott, while Culp was nominated for his role as well as for writing an original teleplay for the series.

Nickelodeon, Nick-at-Nite is a programming service of MTV Networks Inc., which also owns and operates MTV: Music Television and VH-1/Video Hits One.

UConn library sells worldwide art

Special exhibition and sale of original 19th and 20th century graphic works from Japan, Europe, and America will be held on April 29 and 20, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Homer Babbidge Library.

The Frank Lyons Collection of Baltimore, Maryland, includes:

—Fine examples of 19th century etching and lithography;
—Contemporary as well as classic, antique Japanese Woodblocks;
—Modern works in lithography, silkscreen, and intaglio;
—100 years of photography (1860-1960);
—A variety of contemporary poster art.

Masters such as Bradley, Cheret, Haden, Kuniyoshi, Saito, Watanabe, and Tanaka are represented, as well as noted photographers Coburn, Eugene, Halsman, Sander, and Steiglitz, plus a host of other distinguished contemporary and 19th century artists.

The collection is shown in an informal atmosphere, and a knowledgeable representative will be on hand to answer questions about the works on view. People are encouraged to look through the more than 500 individually matted and well-described works of art. The price range is wide beginning at under ten dollars.

With two outs and nobody on in the fifth, Robin Abney singled and Mary Ann Laverty walked. Jackie Cippolini then followed with a triple to make it 2-0. Cippolini scored the third run when Kim Dempsey reached on an error by Julie Sherman.

The Huskies got a two-out single from Carol Anderson in the third, but had their best chance in the fourth.

With one out, Wisniewski doubled and Westra singled. Winning pitcher Mary Lavage, 10-9, then got Black to ground to the pitcher and Millie Didio to ground to second.

Cherie Anderson, 10-6-1, took the loss.

"We had opportunities and didn't score," Mullins said. "They scored with their one opportunity."

UConn is ranked second in the Northeast behind UMass, with Adelphi third. Mullins said the Huskies still have a chance to make the NCAA Tourament.

"I think it's going to come down to the last two games (with Adelphi)," Mullins said. "After that it's up to the (tournament selection) committee."

UConn closes out the regulare season at Adelphi on Wednesday. On May 9 and 10 they play in the ECAC Division I Regionals, at a site to be determined.

tying run and Dave Lanese, who had reached on an error and advanced to second on Stadalnik's single, scored the game-winner on a double error by BC shortstop Mike Nyhan.

Bob Emery, 2-2, was the winning pitcher after entering the game in the third inning with UConn down 7-3. He allowed four hits the rest of the way, retiring all but six of the 25 batters he faced. He struck out nine and walked only one.

On Saturday, Otto, playing first base, hit two two-run homers and Jim Robinson, 4-4, tossed a five-hitter to lead the Eagles to the 7-3 win.

In the top of the fifth the Huskies got solo homers from Jerry Lapenta and Al Franceschini.

Lapenta, who went three-for four, now has 12 homers on the season, putting him within one of the UConn single-season record held set by Mike Johnson in 1981.

The Huskies return to action when they travel to UMass for a 3 p.m. game

Whalers even series

HARTFORD (AP)—Mike Liut, back in goal after missing two games because of an injury, stopped 32 shots and Kevin Dineen scored his sixth goal of the playoffs Sunday night to lead the Hartford Whalers to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Canadiens and force a deciding seventh game in their Adams Division final series.

The Canadiens, as they have in four games of the series, outshot the Whalers 32-17 but Liut proved equal, making up for several defensive lapses by his teammates.

Dineen, the Whalers' scrappy right wing and inspirational leader, scored the goal the Whalers needed to send the best-of-seven series back to Montreal for the final game Tuesday night.

Patrick Roy, the Canadiens' 20-year-old rookie goalie, had another outstanding game, stopping 16 shots to keep the contest close.

Starting for the first time in three games since taking a shot on the right knee, Liut stopped 14 shots in a scoreless first period.

In three previous losing efforts against the Canadiens, the Whalers have fallen behind in the opening 20 minutes. The Canadiens outshot the Whalers 76-28 during the six first periods of the series.

Dineen, who scored twice in a losing effort in Game 5, tipped in a centering pass from John Anderson at 7:30 of the second period to give Hartford the early lead.

Tennis comes in fourth

BABSON PARK, Mass.—UConn junior Jeff Even won the New England Championship in the No. 5 singles position and led UConn to a fourth-place team at the regional tournament Sunday.

Even led a group of three UConn players to reach the championship round. In his match, he defeated Kaye Ho of MIT by 7-6, 2-6, 7-5 scores.

In the No. 3 position, Rob Craig of MIT defeated UConn's Todd Farin in straight sets, 6-0, 6-1.

At the No. 6 singles final, MIT's George Liden bested UConn's Mike Hardesty for the crown, 6-4 and 6-2.

MIT was the team champion with 41 total points. Hartford (26), Vermont (25), UConn (23) and Brandeis (21) completed the top five.

Track is runner-up

NEW HAVEN—Led by strong performances from its sprinters, the UConn men's track team captured second place at the Connecticut Intercollegiate Championships hosted by Yale Sunday.

Yale claimed the team championship with 198 points, outdistancing UConn's 183.

UConn claimed victories in both the 4x100 and 4x400 meter relay events and also had individual winners within both the 100- and 200-meter dashes.

In the 200-meter dash, freshman Floyd Redfield established a UConn record as he posted a time of 21.40 seconds to break Raymond James' old mark of 21.50.

In the 100-meter dash, fellow freshman Rohan Freeman blazed to victory with a time of 10.67 seconds.

The Huskies 4x100-meter relay team of James Patterson, Freeman, Bill Oliverson and Redfield clocked a winning time of 41.88 seconds. The 4x400 squad rounded out the UConn winners as Jack Prior, Larry Byar, Tim Nash and Redfield combined for a time of 3:19.04. See page 15

Golf finishes eighth

SUTTON, Mass—The University of Hartford captured four of the top six individual finishes en route to claiming the 1986 New England Division I Regional Collegiate Golf Championship title Friday at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Hartford scored a two-day total of 602 to easily outdistance runner-up Dartmouth (625). UConn placed eighth in the 13-team field with a score of 650.

Hartford's Doug Domian took New England individual champion honors with a five-over-par 149, shooting a 74 Thursday and a 75 Friday. He finished one stroke ahead of teammate and runnerup Jerry Kelly (76-74-150).

Top UConn finisher was freshman Mark Dante who fired a two-day score of 81-80-161. One stroke behind him was Husky junior Mark Capece (82-80-162).

The New England Championships mark the conclusion of the 1986 spring season for the Huskies. See page 15

Men's tennis

The men's tennis team hosts CENTRAL CONNECTICUT AT 3 p.m.

The softball team split a doubleheader with Temple Sunday, losing the first game 3-0 and winning the second 1-0 (Mark Caswell photo).

By Joe Erwin
Daily Campus Staff

Despite having two of their key players not playing, the softball team rallied for a split of its doubleheader with Temple. The Lady Owls took the opener 3-0, while UConn rode the shutout pitching of freshman Sharon Arnold to a 1-0 victory.

Yesterday's game concluded the Huskies' home season. They finished 13-4-1 at home, and are now 27-14-1 overall. Temple is now 19-17.

UConn coach Karen Mullins did not play starting shortstop Jodi Dinga and pitcher/designated hiitter Mary Linhares for "disciplinary reasons." She declined further comment on the incident and to whether Dinga and Linhares would rejoin the team.

After a tough loss in the first game, Mullins gave the Huskies credit for rebounding.

"It took a lot for them to come back in the second game," Mullins said.

In the second game, Arnold, 4-2, did a Houdini-like job of getting into trouble and then escaping unscathed. She gave up at least one hit in every inning, and allowed nine for the game.

A single, sacrifice and an error put Temple runners at second and third with one out in the first, but Arnold got Robin Boyd to pop to third and Patty Walko to ground to second.

In the second, two-out singles by Mary Ann Laverty and Jackie Cippolini put runners on first and second, but Kim Dempsey hit into a fielder's choice.

Temple also got two hits in the fifth, but once again did not score.

UConn also had a few chances. Lynn Wisniewski led off with a single in the second and Kris Westra was safe on a fielder's choice, but the next the runners were stranded on first and second.

Dawn Muzoleski led off the fifth with a double and went to third on a passed ball, but the Huskies couln't get her home.

UConn finally won it in the sixth. Muzoleski led off with a walk off loser Sally Bauman, 9-8, and Wisniewski sacrificed her to second. Kris Westra's single sent Muzoleski to third, and Bonnie Black's fielder's choice drove in the game's only run.

In the first game, both sides had just three hits, but the Lady Owls out theirs together to score three runs.

Hitting leads baseball past BC

The baseball team pounded 28 hits and received two strong pitching performances as the Huskies swept a doubleheader from Boston College 10-6 and 9-8, to take the weekend series two games to one.

The Eagles beat UConn Saturday, 7-3.

The wins raise the Huskies' record to 14-19 overall and 8-7 in the Big East. UConn is now second in the conference's Northern Division behind St. John's. BC falls to 11-20, 4-11 in the Big East.

In the opener, the Huskies ripped 13 hits in the seven-inning game. Catcher Jim Sarantides was three-for-three, including a three-run home run in the bottom of the third.

Bob Osborne got what proved to be the game-winning RBI in the fourth inning when he delivered a sacrifice fly that scored H.A. Butterworth and broke a 6-6 tie.

John Shea, 2-3, went the distance for the win. He struck out eight and walked only two.

Tom Otto, 1-3, was tagged for the loss after working four innings and surrendering nine of UConn's 10 runs.

In the second game, the Huskies entered the eighth inning trailing 8-6 and scored three runs to win it. Al Franceschini singled, went to third on a single by Jerry Lapenta and scored on a wild pitch by BC loser Jim Coffey, 1-3.

Brian Stadalnik drove in Lapenta with a single for the
